The Resource Kit is not a teaching program but rather a method for teaching sexuality education based on the concept of task analysis. Instead of breaking down a skill into a number of tasks, six key sexuality concepts have been broken down into a number of components. Just as in task analysis where skills cannot be learnt until each task has been mastered, complex sexuality concepts similarly cannot be learnt until students have an understanding of the components which form the building blocks of the concept.

Using the Handbook as a guide, teachers select components to teach in order to build on the student's understanding of each concept. The magnetic board and picture cards which accompany the Handbook are a visual tool to assist teachers to teach the components.

The Concept Board has been designed to accommodate the need for teachers to assess and report on the learning achievements of individual students. (Individual Education Plan - IEP system). Examples of basic lesson plans are provided in the Handbook.
